Buildings of Special Architectural or Historic Interest

Under the Planning (Listed Buildings and Conservation Areas) Act 1990 the Secretary of State is required to compile lists of buildings of special architectural or historic interest. Buildings which qualify to be 'listed' are:

- (a) all buildings before 1700 which survive in anything like their original condition;
- (b) most buildings between 1700 and 1840, though selection is necessary;
- (c) between 1840 and 1914 only buildings of definite quality and character.

Selected buildings of 1914 onwards are also sometimes considered. Buildings are classified in grades to show their relative importance.

Grade I are buildings of exceptional interest which total only 6,000 buildings nationally (less than 2% of the total listed buildings).

Grade II* are particularly important buildings of more than special interest but not equal to Grade I. This category is estimated to contain some 4% of listed buildings.

Grade II comprise the remaining 94% of listed buildings which are of special interest and warrant every effort to preserve them.

Previously there was also a non-statutory Grade III which has now been phased out.

Once listed, statutory protection is given to the entire building (including the inside), any objects fixed to the building and any structures within the curtilage of the property which stood there prior to 1948. Anyone wishing to demolish, alter or extend a listed building must first obtain 'Listed Building Consent' from the local planning authority (in this case Gedling Borough Council).

Application procedure is much the same as for planning permission (which may also be necessary) by completion of a form which is returned to the Borough Council. It is an offence to demolish, alter or extend a listed building without consent and it is possible for an unlimited fine and/or up to twelve months imprisonment to be imposed.

It is possible that changes may occur to this list and so you are advised to contact the Borough Council to establish if a building is listed.
